

ORCHESTRA TO BE ORGANIZED

Symphonic Organization to Assist Ogden Tabernacle Choir

A move to organize a tabernacle choir symphony orchestra to study the higher symphonic forms and furnish the accompaniments for student and professional soloists and appear with the choir on concert occasions, was announced yesterday by Lester Hinchcliff, director of the choir.

The orchestra would be made up entirely of union musicians, he announced.

To get the sentiment of the musicians invited to join the organization, Mr. Hinchcliff is sending out a letter outlining his plan and asking for a response.

The proposed orchestra will be made up of the following: Twelve violins, three violas, three bass violas, three cellos, two French horns, two trumpets, three trombones, and timpani.

TO IMPORT SOME

There are no performers on the bassoon or oboe in Ogden, and these will have to be brought in from other cities, since both instruments are highly essential in playing symphony and oratorio music.

The text of the letter which Mr. Hinchcliff is sending out, follows: "An Ogden tabernacle choir symphony orchestra, composed entirely of union musicians is to be organized."

"The purpose of such an organization is to study the higher symphonic forms, be prepared to furnish orchestral accompaniments for student or professional soloists and to appear in conjunctive concert with the Ogden tabernacle choir."

"It is proposed that the members of the orchestra shall receive remuneration for their services in concert, according to a scale to be determined by the attendance of the individual. A constitution embodying this plan will be presented to the orchestra in the near future."

"Our first public appearance will be New Year's day in conjunction with the tabernacle choir when that organization and distinguished imported soloists will sing the glorious 'Messiah'."

"Will you join with us in this endeavor to give the community one of its most crying needs?"

"In inviting you to join this orchestra, we feel to do ourselves an honor and would warmly appreciate an answer in the affirmative not later than Tuesday noon, next."

Yours sincerely,
OGDEN TABERNACLE CHOIR,
LESTER HINCCHLIFF,
"Director"

NEW WORLD BEGINS, LECTURER ASSERTS

This evening at 7:45 o'clock, S. H. Toutlian will deliver a free lecture at the Central Junior high school, on the subject, "The New World Begun." He will explain from Biblical prophecy now being fulfilled, that the old world has come to an end and that the new world has begun, and that this will bring blessings and life to the people and that millions now living will never die.

Trouble has a tendency to make the peoples of the earth think. For eight years they have suffered greatly. The lecturer will point out that this has been permitted to awaken the people to the fact that the old world is done and the new is beginning.

It is claimed the rulers of the earth are desperately attempting by international conference to patch up the old order. The lecturer will prove from Biblical prophecy that such is impossible, and that the new world under the Messiah will establish a righteous reign, bringing the desire of the peoples and nations of the earth.

SHEEP SHORTAGE ON IDAHO FORESTS

Hay in Idaho in the vicinity of the Snake river is selling for prices ranging from $8 to $8 per ton, according to Assistant District Forester C. N. Woods in charge of grazing in District 4 of the forest service, who has returned from an inspection trip to Halley, Boise, Weiser and Emmett national forests of Idaho.

Recent rains will improve range conditions, he said, which for some time past have been suffering from drought.

Though there is a shortage of sheep reported in Idaho the shortage on the forest service ranges show but five percent, he said. It is not expected that this shortage will be made up for at least another year and as a consequence it is expected that mutton prices will remain at the present high levels for considerable time to come.

LARGE HERD OF DEER ON KAIBAB

Ogden Forestry Man Accompanies Washington Official on Trip

There are at present, approximately 600 deer on the Grand Canyon national game preserve in the vicinity of the Kaibab national forest, according to P. S. Locke, in charge of fish and game investigations of district Four of the forest service, who returned yesterday from an inspection trip to that section.

While there, he accompanied Major E. Goldman, chief of the biological investigations of the biological survey with headquarters at Washington, who was investigating the condition of the deer and the ranges in that section.

They found the deer in excellent condition and increasing in numbers but the ranges overstocked from the viewpoint of grazing. The classes of browse preferred by the deer have been overgrazed.

It is possible to count more than 600 head of deer on the "V. T." park, which place he said, offered the greatest opportunity in the world at present to see large herds of deer in their wild condition. Along about dark, they come into the V. T. park in large numbers, he said.

There is a smaller number of cougars in the park than formerly, but the coyotes are increasing in numbers and have grown so bold that they attack not only the fawns, but the deer as well. Plans are being considered to check the increase of the coyotes on the Kaibab national forest.

Following his trip, with Major Goldman, Mr. Locke went to the Bryce canyon section, where he made a topographic map of the country, surrounding the rim of the canyon, spending a week there.
